

CHECKLIST OF CHILEAN BRUCHIDAE WITH NEW SYNONYMIES AND NEW COMBINATIONS (COLEOPTERA)

JOHN M. KINGSOLVER<sup>1</sup>

ABSTRACT

A checklist of the Chilean Bruchidae is given. New combinations and new synonymies are included. Amblycerus caryoboriformis (Pic) and Stator tigrensis (Pic) are cited for the first time in Chile.

RESUMEN

Se entrega una lista de las especies de Bruchidae presentes en Chile. Se incluyen nuevas combinaciones y nuevas sinonimias. Amblycerus caryoboriformis (Pic) y Stator tigrensis (Pic) son citados por primera vez para Chile.

In recent years, an increase in exports of agricultural products from Chile into the United States has prompted an increased awareness of insects, among them Bruchidae, being carried along with the products. Regretably, keys to genera and species of Bruchidae are lacking for this distinctive fauna. As a first step toward a long-delayed faunal treatment of the family for Chile, this list updates current scientific names for each of the described species found in that country. I am fortunate to have examined all but two of the typespecimens.

Several species originally described in Bruchus, and later included in Acanthoscelides Blackwelder's (1946) Neotropical checklist are here assigned to Lithraeus. Because these species lack metatibial carinae and bear a single subapical femoral denticle (or no denticle), they more properly fit the description of Lithraeus than that of Acanthoscelides. Each species name so transferred is labeled "New Combination". New Synonyms are similarly indicated.

A modern comprehensive treatment of the taxonomy of the Chilean Bruchidae is needed. Porter (1933) published a brief species list, and Olalquiaga (1949) presented a short paper on Chilean species intercepted in the U.S. and deposited in the National Museum at Washington, DC. Several species have been treated in papers by Bottimer (1968), Decelle (1966), Kingsolver (1967, 1968a and b, 1973, 1975, 1982, 1983), Kingsolver and Borowiec (1988), Teran and Kingsolver (1977), and by Teran and L'Argentier (1979), but species recorded from the area are buried in catalogues (Pic, 1913; Blackwelder, 1946).

Spermophagus sophorae Fahraeus (1839) was described from "Chili" was included in previous species catalogs as part of the Chilean fauna; however, it has not been recovered in the New World since its description. Kingsolver and Borowiec (1988), after a study of typespecimens, concluded that, since S. sophorae is known only from Africa and Asia, that "Chili" most likely refers to the former Chinese province of Chili visited by Fahraeus in 1831, and that S. sophorae should be stricken from the New World species lists.

This is the first paper to bring together a checklist of the currently known fauna.

Data in this list are arranged in the following order: specific name, author, date and page, original genus, and notes. Complete literature citations can be found in at the end of the paper.
